

ESTJ “The Supervisor”

ESTJ's live in a world of facts. They live in the present, with their eyes constantly scanning to make sure everything around them is running smoothly. They honor traditions and laws, and have a clear set of standards and beliefs. They expect the same of others and have no patience or understanding of individuals who do not value these systems. They like to see quick results from their efforts.

ESTJ's are take-charge people. They have a clear vision of how things should be, so they naturally step into leadership roles. They are self-confident and aggressive. They are talented at creating systems and plans of actions— and at being able to see what steps need to be taken to complete a specific task. They may sometimes be demanding and critical, because of their strong beliefs, and are likely to express themselves if they feel someone isn't meeting their standards. ESTJ's are extremely honest.

ESTJ's are usually model citizens. They take their commitments seriously. ESTJ's enjoy interacting with people and they like to have fun. When ESTJ's are under stress they may have a hard time putting their feelings into words and communicating them to others. The ESTJ puts forth a lot of effort in almost everything they do.

Possible Career Paths for ESTJ's:

- Military Leaders
- Business Administrators or Managers
- Police/Detective Work
- Judges
- Financial Officers
- Teachers
- Sales Representatives

