

INFP “The Healer”

INFP's are focused on making the world a better place for people. Their primary goal is to find out their meaning in life. What is their purpose? How can they best serve others? They are perfectionists who drive themselves hard in their quest for achieving the goals they have for themselves.

Generally thoughtful and considerate, INFP's are good listeners and put people at ease. Although they may be reserved in expressing emotion, they have a very deep well of caring and are genuinely interested in understanding people. This is sensed by others, making the INFP a valued friend. An INFP can be quite warm with people he or she knows well.

INFP's do not like conflict and go to great lengths to avoid it. If they must face it, they will always approach it from the perspective of their feelings. In conflict situations, INFP's place little importance on who is right and who is wrong. They focus on the way the conflict makes them feel. INFP's are flexible and laid-back.

INFP's do not like to deal with hard facts and logic. They have very high standards and are perfectionists. Consequently, they are usually hard on themselves and don't give themselves enough credit. INFP's may have problems working on a project in a group, because their standards are likely to be higher than other members' of the group.

INFP's are usually talented writers. INFP's also often work in social service professions, such as counseling or teaching. They are at their best when they're helping others.

Possible Career Paths for INFP's:

Counselor / Social Worker
Writers
Teachers / Professors
Psychologists
Psychiatrists
Musicians
Clergy / Religious Workers

